LUNCHES AND FLOWERS FOR NELLIE.

Chapter 22.

Nellie had lunch twice with Mr. Robinson, and once she had brought home a wonderful bouquet of roses he had given her. When she looked at the flowers, she said: "What's the use of refusing a good thing when he tells me he wants company? And he always has flowers on his desk. This is the bunch he had today. They're just like the ones he gave me." "But I wouldn't lunch with him, Nellie," Cora thought. She saw other girls wearing. She said: "Well, I don't see anything wrong in it—but if it worries you I'll eat my little, old cheap lunch and give him the 'go-by.' It's hard enough, he sure knows what to order for a hungry girl."

"I know, dear, but I'm sure it isn't right for you to accept so much from him. If he wasn't so old, it would cause you to be talked about. I think he means it all in kindness, but I shall be happier if you don't accept his invitations." Cora really did not think Mr. Robinson meant anything out of the way; he had seemed just a kind and fatherly. But Nellie was so young, so outspoken, so pretty, and so alone in the world.

"That old bookkeeper makes me wild," Nellie burst out after a time. "He's always watching me out of the corner of his eyes. I make believe I don't notice, but I see it just the same."

"Jealous of the boss' attentions, perhaps," Gladys said laughing. "Nellie always amused her. Naturally quiet, not knowing how to say quick bright things, the younger girl's lively spirits were a constant source of amusement to her."

"Not him! Milk wouldn't sour where he was—his so much sourer."

Nellie was really progressing wonderfully. She was in earnest in her wish to improve and this added to her natural quickness. Her work was so easy she had time and strength to study, often at the office as well as at home.

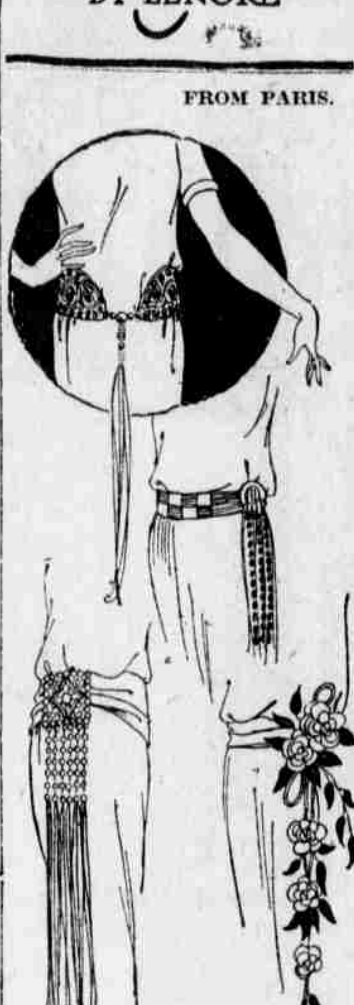

"Sometimes I write the letters he doesn't even dictate them," she told the girls. "Of course he always reads them over before he signs them. He says I write a splendid business letter, that I come right to the point without wasting words. I almost never make a mistake."

FROM PARIS.

Lavishly beaded and jeweled gowns of novel design are one of the most effective means of giving smartness and individuality to the evening frock. Evening gowns may be divided into two classes this season, those of filmy chiffon and those of velvet and rich brocade; and in the latter type of dress the feature is often the main motif of the design.

The Egyptian girdle illustrated, the one with the long slender tassels in the center, heavily studded with rhinestones and glittering blue and green stones, was surely the most important feature of the straightline, silver brocade frock on which it appeared. Silk and chiffon flower garlands were frequently used on the young girls' dance frocks shown at the openings here in Paris.

Although on the daytime dresses novelty rides were not so much featured as last season, those that were used were exceedingly individual. One which is sketched in this issue was cleverly fashioned of silk cord in gray and red, interlarding squares, with metal pendants.

BELLS RINGING FOR BOOK BALL AT THE ARMORY

Run. There goes the bell. Don't be late for the school teachers' ball which will take up at 9 o'clock this evening at the armory. Plans are all complete for the entertainment and the best of music and soft drinks are promised. The proceeds of the affair will go in the book fund to buy texts for the poor children of the city.

Hand made posters showing a variety of Peck's had boys, who might be better if they had some books to study their lessons from, were distributed about the city yesterday to advertise the affair. They were designed and made by the county school teachers who inaugurated the affair and have quite a collection of it.

A committee of teachers is selling tickets to the benefit ball. They are also selling books at the following places: Palace drug store, Matson's book store, X. M. C. A., Ruppert's drug store, N. M. cigar store and Butts' drug store. The first annual book ball given at the armory last year resulted in the raising of over $500 with which to buy books for the children of poor parents. So many requests for books were received this year that the teachers decided to repeat the affair.

15-YEAR-OLD BOY IN FIFTH GRADE SENT TO SCHOOL BY THE COURT

Miguel Luna, a 15-year-old boy, went to school as far as the fifth grade and then decided to go to work. Judge George Roddy yesterday decided that young Luna should go back to school. The boy has decided to give up his job and go back to his studies. He will re-enter the fifth grade Monday.

His case is the first one to be brought into court this year. Usually a notice from Thomas Morrin, transient officer, that the compulsory school act is being broken by non-attendance, is sufficient, according to John Milne, city superintendent of city schools.

Children who are within school age and are working are automatically exempted or put on part time class schedule, if they are supporting a widowed mother and smaller brothers and sisters. The Luna boy, however, was working just because he preferred it to school. His father is employed.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the way it is, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long, tedious diets of rice, cereals and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.—Adv.

BEAUTY CHATS

HAIR TONICS.

Every woman should possess the formula for a good cold cream and a good hair tonic. As a matter of fact, by the intelligent use of these two things and a few simple lotions made from ingredients in daily use in every house, she can give herself as elaborate beauty treatments as she wishes.

Another day I will talk about the cold creams and the household formulas. Today I want to give you my hair tonic again because I know of no other that is as good or better. The formula follows:

Pilocarpine Hydrochlorate, 2 grains
Precipitated Sulphur, 30 grains
Creosol (Lily) . . . 30 drops
Castor oil . . . 10 drops
Alcohol (95 per cent) . . . 10 drops

Tr. Cantharides . . . 4 ounces
Cologne (Farina) . . . 4 drams
Rose Water . . . 8 ounces
This formula you may use as it stands, or you may make the following changes in it according to your needs. The Pilocarpine is the most expensive ingredient in the formula and is to stimulate the color cells of the hair making the hair invaluable for those suffering from premature grayness, or those whose hair has lost its richness of shade from ill health. Without it, it is still a splendid general tonic, and the color oil may be left out. There is not enough of either to affect the quantity of the formula. Even with these three eliminated you have a formula containing an antiseptic, a strong stimulant in cantharides, an alcohol sufficient to blend, and rose water to make the proper quantity.

This should be used daily or two or three times a week.

Caroline:—Consult a doctor about the condition of your eyes as you are inviting more trouble by putting off this treatment.

Reader:—I think red vinegar will help to keep the hair light.

Gloria:—Never massage coconut butter into the face or neck as it may invite a growth of hair.

Amy:—Consult the doctor concerning your growth on your legs and do not handle it any more as you have been doing.

F. A.:—Bleach off these liver spots and clear the system. Close these enlarged pores by using aspirin or ice after you have cleansed the skin.

Answers to Questions.

(Any reader can get the answer to a question by writing The Albuquerque Journal Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This office applies strictly to information of legal, medical, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. How long has Representative Vosted been in office? Who is his opponent in the coming election? R. E. T.

A. Mr. Vosted was first elected to the Fifty-eighth congress from the Seventh Congressional district of Minnesota. His opponent in the coming election is the Rev. Mr. O. J. Kvale of Benson. Mr. Kvale is a democrat who claims to be dryer than Mr. Vosted. He is pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America.

Q. Has any study ever been made showing the effect of the temperature of a room on school children? C. H. J.

A. Superintendent Hines of Crawfordville, Indiana, reports the following: When the temperature of the school room was 80 degrees Fahrenheit, the class was restless and dull; 74 degrees Fahrenheit, dull; 72 degrees Fahrenheit, excellent work; 68 degrees Fahrenheit, best work of the day; 65 degrees Fahrenheit, splendid work; 65 degrees Fahrenheit, class happy and full of energy; 60 degrees Fahrenheit, too cold for good work.

Q. Are automobiles used by the majority of laundries in the United States? C. A. G.

A. Of 271 laundries surveyed, 56 per cent use motor cars in delivery.

Q. How much land is included in Golden Gate park? C. H. R.

A. This park, which is located in San Francisco, occupies 1,013 acres.

Q. What is the origin of the use of coffee? T. P. E.

A. The Arabians of which country the coffee plant is a native, say that it has been in use from time immemorial. A story of the fifteenth century from this country relates that a flock of sheep was grazing on the shrubs of the coffee plant became lively and sleepless at night. This fact was noticed and the Mohammedans used the leaves and later the berries as a stimulant to combat sleep during worship, which was a long and wearisome service. The use of coffee was thereupon prohibited by the orthodox Mohammedans.

Q. Is the greengage a plum? W. S.

A. The greengage is a famous variety of sweet plum. It originated in France, where it is known as Reine Claude, from Claudia, Queen to Francis I. Its English title is after a clergyman named Gault who introduced it to England.

Q. Who were Geri and Freki? A. According to the sagas, these are the wolves of Odin. They lie at his feet as he sits on his throne in Valhalla. Odin needs no food, so he gives all the meat set before him to his wolves.

Q. How did the ocarina get its name? F. M. L.

A. This musical instrument was first known in Italy or Austria. The name is the Italian diminutive for oca meaning goose and was applied to the instrument on account of its resemblance to a goose egg.

Q. Under which Pharaoh did the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt take place? A. It is still a disputed question under which Pharaoh the exodus took place. Most general view is that Ramesses II was the Pharaoh of oppression and Memphis of the exodus. The mummy of the former has been discovered.

Q. Is there a tower that can be rocked by the pressure of the hand? G. R.

A. This is true of the Sather bell tower on the campus of the University of California at Berkeley, erected as a memorial by Mrs. J. K. Sather. It is 302 feet high and is so built that in the event of an earthquake it would vibrate like a tree.

Q. Wisconsin Squad Weak. Madison, Wis., Oct. 12.—Injuries have cut seriously into the University of Wisconsin football squad on the eve of its South Dakota contest. Captain Harris, half back; Tebbell, star end; and Christenson, guard, tonight were on the side lines. Need was seen for strengthening the defense of the squad.

ENGLISH LORD AND LADY "DO" THE SOUTHWEST

Perform All Conventional Tourist Rites in Albuquerque; Traveling Through in Private Car.

The sound of a Harvey house going on a windy night appeals as strongly to the royal family of England as to the Kansas City traveling men. Lord Louis Mountbatten, cousin to the Prince of Wales, and his bride, the richest heiress in England, and party, in true tourist form last night sought the hotel dining room first and did their curio hunting later.

All except the young lord himself. He's a noble youth for a fact, who lived up to all the traditions of valor one is taught to expect from the royal folk. When he heard that someone in the party had to be subjected to an interview, he stepped up and volunteered, gallantly insisting that the rest of the party go in and eat dinner while it was still hot.

Holding open the dining room door, with one hand and urging one of the party royal retainers to go in with the other, Lord Mountbatten conducted the following monologue:

"Wonderful county. Please go inside. We knew it was and that's why we came here. Don't wait for me. We spent most of the day on the observation. No, I'd rather talk now. We stop in Humboldt tomorrow. Then we see the Grand Canyon and California. Yes, I'll be right in. I've been in California before, but never this way. The Indians are very interesting. Don't mention it. Goodbye."

And in view of the fact that he probably was really hungry and that his new wife was looking with a good deal of interest through the door, the young nobleman was allowed to join his dinner party without expressing a single quotable opinion on flippers, prohibition, the Near East situation, or the world's affairs.

His lordship is an exceedingly personable young man with a charming manner. He is unusually tall and slender with high cheek bones, sandy colored hair and a genuine smile. He speaks with the paradoxical choppy drawl characteristic of Englishmen. His bride, whom he pointed out with some pride among the several other young women in the party, is pretty, with fluffy light brown hair, she stepped from the train bareheaded and wrapped in a large dark fur coat.

The royal party was standing up in their private car with wraps already on when the train pulled into the station. They were escorted to the dining room by several waitresses, a railroad official and were followed by a crowd of university girls who had deserted their departing football heroes to catch a glimpse of a real lord and lady.

The party will arrive tomorrow at Humboldt, Ariz., near Phoenix, for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. George M. Colvocoresses. Lord Mountbatten is reported to be interested in Arizona copper mines, and will inspect some property in that district before going to the Grand Canyon. They will spend some time in California and return east by the northern route, visiting all of the large cities.

"We have only three months for a honeymoon," explained Lord Mountbatten. "I'm in the admiralty, you know, and I just must be back when my leave is up."

So they hurried on last night after an hour in Albuquerque.

BURGLARS CAUGHT IN ACT OF ROBBERY AT STORE AT WILLIAMS

Special to The Journal.

Williams, Ariz., Oct. 12.—At 8:30 p. m. Tuesday burglars were detected in the act of robbing the store of the Holmes supply company.

L. G. Edgar, the acting manager in the absence of G. J. Allen, who is out of town, was returning to the store for a forgotten parcel, accompanied by Nicolo Gomez, an employee of the firm, upon reaching the front door, Mr. Allen noticed the intruders, so withdrew to the shadows of the entry to act as guard while Gomez was dispatched for an officer.

Marshal Burns answered the call, but in the meantime one burglar having become aware of the detection, crawled through a broken transom over the front door and calmly sprang down upon the unsuspecting guard, and quickly made his escape.

Gomez and Marshal Burns made a thorough search of the building but it is supposed the second burglar made his escape while the officer was in the rear of the store. Only a few minor losses have been noted. It is the supposition that the robbery is the work of persons familiar with the store and apprehension of the guilty ones is expected.

HUSBAND OF WOMAN HELD FOR MURDER PUT UNDER ARREST

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—Armour L. Phillips, whose wife, Clara Phillips, is awaiting trial for the murder of Mrs. Albert Meadows, was taken into custody late today while he was visiting Mrs. Phillips at the Los Angeles county jail. He was detained, the record showing him to be "held for investigation."

The district attorney's office earlier announced an investigation was being made regarding stories published in local newspapers relating to testimony it was said Phillips is ready to give at his wife's trial.

Mrs. Phillips is alleged to have killed Mrs. Meadows with a hammer because of jealousy. The trial is set for October 20 next.

In connection with the proposed German moratorium, it is said that if France can devise a method of keeping a mule so weak that it can't kick and yet so strong that it can work, there might be a solution of the difficulty.—Punch.
